As amended, independent claim 1 specifically recites the inclusion of at least one support member formed on the distal portion of the inner tube. Additionally, as amended, claim 1 requires a distal portion of the energy emitting member to be supported by that support member in a position whereby tissue cutting or ablating energy will emit from the from the energy emitting member toward the first side of the protector. New dependent claims 54-57 recite specific embodiments of the support member. An example of one embodiment of the claimed support member is seen in Figures 2-3G. An example of another embodiment of the claimed support member is seen in Figures 5A and 5B.

The prior art Baerveldt et al. and Eichenbaum references do not teach or suggest the claimed support member.
